Directions (67-71): Read the passage and answer the following questions.

The Jaipur Literature Festival, often described as the “greatest literary show on Earth,” is an annual celebration of literature, ideas, and culture. It began in 2006 with modest gatherings but has now grown into a global platform where writers, thinkers, historians, politicians, business leaders, and entertainers come together. Thousands of visitors from India and abroad attend the festival every year, eager to listen to renowned authors and to engage in debates on contemporary issues.

The festival has provided a stage for Nobel laureates, Booker Prize winners, and debut novelists alike. It has encouraged dialogue on topics as varied as climate change, gender equality, history, art, and technology. Over the years, JLF has expanded to cities across the world, yet Jaipur remains its most iconic venue. The setting of the Diggi Palace, with its vibrant decorations, adds charm and grandeur to the intellectual exchange.

In the past, literary festivals were considered exclusive events for scholars, but JLF has democratized literature by making it accessible to all. In the present day, it represents a space where people from diverse backgrounds can share stories and ideas. In the future, the festival may grow even further, incorporating digital platforms to reach audiences who cannot be physically present. Thus, JLF is not merely a festival; it is a cultural phenomenon that continues to inspire readers and writers across generations.
