APTITUDE

If two or more people inflict harm to another individual, they are considered joint tortfeasors. Joint tortfeasors are individuals who participate actively in the civil wrong commission. Each joint tortfeasor is accountable for repaying a share of the damages awarded to the complainant depending on the percentage of harm inflicted by his wrongful act or omission. As per the concept of contribution, a respondent who contributes more than his fair share of the penalties or pays more than he is responsible for might sue the other respondent for compensation. Tortfeasors are severally liable for the same damage as a result of an independent course of action, which means they will be accountable for the same damage rather than jointly liable for the same tort. When two or more people inflict the same injury to another person as a result of their distinct tortious activities, this is referred to as multiple concurrent tortfeasors. Joint tortfeasor obligation arises in three situations: agency wherein one person is authorized to undertake work on another's behalf, any tort performed by that individual, the agent, and the principal who is approving the activity will all be held jointly and separately accountable. Second, in Vicarious Liability, and third, in Joint Action, when two or more people come together for a shared purpose, they are all jointly and severally liable for the tort committed during the action.

Ram was hit by a motor vehicle in January wherein he had broken his right leg. In March when he had recovered from it he was assaulted by Ghanshyam and he again suffered a blow on his right leg which did not fully recover. He now cannot bend his leg for the rest of his life. Determine the liability of the vehicle driver and Ghanshyam?

309171	Ghanshyam will be liable as he was the one who hit his leg again causing him serious injury.

Principle: A master is liable for the acts committed by his servant in the course of employment.

Fact: Amit is a driver working for Oleole Company. As per the order and bookings, the manager of the company asked him to drop a customer at the Chhatrapati Rajaram Maharaj Airport, Kolhapur from Panhala, a nearby place. On his way back from the airport, he happened to see his girlfriend Rekha at Rankala Lake. He offered to drop her at home, which happened to be close to his office in Panhala. She got into the car and soon thereafter, due to the negligence of Amit, the car dashed into a milk tanker and Rekha was thrown out of the car, and she suffered multiple injuries. She filed a case for compensation against Oleole Company.

309191	Company shall be liable because Amit was in the course of employment at the time of accident.
309192	Company shall not be liable, Amit was not in the course of employment when he took Rekha inside the car.

Read the Assertion (A) and Reason (R) carefully and choose the correct option:

Assertion (A): Unlike traditional epic poems, T. S. Eliot's The Waste Land is characterized by its fragmented structure, use of multiple voices, and allusions to various mythologies and literary texts.

Reason (R): This fragmented, allusive style was a deliberate artistic choice by Eliot to reflect the profound sense of cultural disillusionment, spiritual decay, and intellectual fragmentation that characterized post-World War I Western society.

309299 Both (A) and (R) are true, and (R) is the correct explanation of (A).

309300 Both (A) and (R) are true, but (R) is NOT the correct explanation of (A).

309301 (A) is true, but (R) is false.

309302 (A) is false, but (R) is true.

Sentence: When people socially learn from each other, they often learn without understanding why what they're copying—the beliefs and behaviours and technologies and know-how—works.

Paragraph: __ (1) __. The dual-inheritance theory says that inheritance is itself an evolutionary system. It has variation. What makes us a new kind of animal, and so different and successful as a species, is we rely heavily on social learning, to the point where socially acquired information is effectively a second line of inheritance, the first being our genes.... __ (2) __. People tend to home in on who seems to be the smartest or most successful person around, as well as what everybody seems to be doing—the majority of people have something worth learning. __ (3) __. When you repeat this process over time, you can get, around the world, cultural packages—beliefs or behaviours or technology or other solutions—that are adapted to the local conditions. People have different psychologies, effectively. __ (4) __.

The four sentences (labelled 1, 2, 3, 4) given below, when properly sequenced would yield a coherent paragraph. Decide on the proper sequence of the order of the sentences and key in the sequence of the four numbers as your answer.

1. If you've seen a little line of text on websites that says something like "customers who bought this also enjoyed that" you have experienced this collaborative filtering firsthand.
2. The problem with these algorithms is that they don't take into account a host of nuances and circumstances that might interfere with their accuracy.
3. If you just bought a gardening book for your cousin, you might get a flurry of links to books about gardening, recommended just for you! – the algorithm has no way of knowing you hate gardening and only bought the book as a gift.
4. Collaborative filtering is a mathematical algorithm by which correlations and co-occurrences of behaviors are tracked and then used to make recommendations.

The Concept of Rule of Law in India

The phrase "Rule of Law" is one of the most significant principles that underpins the Indian legal system. It signifies that law is supreme and no individual, regardless of position or power, is above it. This doctrine traces its origin to the British jurist A.V. Dicey, who described it as the absolute supremacy of law over arbitrary authority. The Indian Constitution embraces this concept in its spirit, ensuring that governance functions within the framework of established legal norms rather than personal whims.

The Indian judiciary has consistently emphasised that the Rule of Law forms a basic feature of the Constitution, meaning that even the Parliament cannot destroy or abrogate it. In Kesavananda Bharati v. State of Kerala (1973), the Supreme Court held that the Constitution has certain basic features which cannot be amended, and the Rule of Law was recognised as one of them. This ruling safeguarded the balance between governmental power and individual liberty.

In practical terms, the Rule of Law manifests in several ways. Firstly, it demands equality before the law, enshrined in Article 14 of the Constitution. This ensures that all citizens are treated equally in the eyes of the law. Secondly, it requires that the exercise of governmental power must have legal backing; no person can be punished except for a breach of law established beforehand. Lastly, it ensures that the judiciary remains independent, capable of reviewing executive or legislative actions to prevent misuse of power.

However, challenges to the Rule of Law persist in India. Political interference, corruption, and delays in justice delivery often weaken the system. Furthermore, instances of custodial deaths, misuse of preventive detention laws, and arbitrary administrative actions raise concerns about whether the principle is always upheld in practice. Despite these limitations, the judiciary continues to play a vital role as the guardian of constitutional morality. Judicial activism, public interest litigations, and media scrutiny have collectively strengthened accountability.

In a democratic society, the Rule of Law does more than simply constrain power; it provides a foundation for trust between citizens and the state. It assures that rights are not mere words on paper but enforceable claims protected by an impartial judiciary. Thus, the vitality of Indian democracy depends not just on the letter of the law, but on the consistent and courageous application of this timeless principle.

According to the passage, what does the concept of the Rule of Law primarily emphasise?

309583	Supremacy of personal authority
309584	Supremacy of law over arbitrary power
309585	Judicial dominance over the legislature
309586	Administrative discretion

Read the Comprehension Passage carefully and answer the question that follows :

A research report published by a reputed international organization states that one-fourth of the women who die in the world today, are Indian. The report adds that the situation in the country was very grave during the last two decades of this century, as the deaths were mostly due to malnutrition and disease. Despite this fact, it is found that the media is indifferent to building public awareness in this regard.

From a month-long study of newspapers and periodicals, it was clear that there was no deliberate, systematic, or sustained effort to sensitize the public by investigative and factual coverage on women. It was also found that the meager coverage, not more than one percent, was related to issues of women-education, liberation, etc., but not with survival and development. The rural woman hardly figured in the media, so says the report.

The expectant mothers are undernourished and anemic, anaemic and hence they give birth to children who are handicapped. These children do not receive prenatal care. Even if such children survive, four to six months later, they become susceptible to diarrhea, respiratory infections, or other infections because of insufficient nutrition. Incomplete immunization and improper treatment. The result is that by the time such children reach 3 years of age, they start showing signs of wasting. They do not grow to their full mental and physical potential.

Unfortunately, the bias against baby girls continues. In the slum areas in India's metropolitan cities, there still exists a bias against the immunisation of baby girls. The report expresses a feeling that social awareness and not merely laws could provide women with the protection and the facilities they deserve.

What, according to the passage, is the root-cause of increasing number of handicapped children?

309607	Abundant prenatal care.

Read the Comprehension Passage carefully and answer the question that follows :

A research report published by a reputed international organization states that one-fourth of the women who die in the world today, are Indian. The report adds that the situation in the country was very grave during the last two decades of this century, as the deaths were mostly due to malnutrition and disease. Despite this fact, it is found that the media is indifferent to building public awareness in this regard.

From a month-long study of newspapers and periodicals, it was clear that there was no deliberate, systematic, or sustained effort to sensitize the public by investigative and factual coverage on women. It was also found that the meager coverage, not more than one percent, was related to issues of women-education, liberation, etc., but not with survival and development. The rural woman hardly figured in the media, so says the report.

The expectant mothers are undernourished and anemic, anaemic and hence they give birth to children who are handicapped. These children do not receive prenatal care. Even if such children survive, four to six months later, they become susceptible to diarrhea, respiratory infections, or other infections because of insufficient nutrition. Incomplete immunization and improper treatment. The result is that by the time such children reach 3 years of age, they start showing signs of wasting. They do not grow to their full mental and physical potential.

Unfortunately, the bias against baby girls continues. In the slum areas in India's metropolitan cities, there still exists a bias against the immunisation of baby girls. The report expresses a feeling that social awareness and not merely laws could provide women with the protection and the facilities they deserve.

What does the report mention about the people in the slum areas of the Indian metropolitan cities?

309623	They are becoming more and more unbiased.
309624	They are against immunisation of baby girls in particular.
309625	They live in sub human conditions.
309626	They are susceptible to various diseases.

Correct Option: 309624
