This, however, doesn't mean that Germany will be completely off coal: the country will continue to import cheaper, foreign coal, which means mining operations such as drilling, blasting, hauling, collection, and transportation will pollute the countries that export coal   5.00   to the economic powerhouse, but the pollution burden on the European nation will be much lower. Moreover, while Germany has closed down deep-shaft mining, it is yet to close down lignite, or brown coal, mines. Lignite is considered even dirtier than black coal but remains cheap to extract. Germany's decision to close down the last coal mine is to meet its decarbonisation goals. While these developments are positive news ---- phasing out coal is considered crucial to limiting global warming to within 1.5 degree C. The world's coal addiction is not going to go away soon because many parts of the world such as India and China still need the cheap fuel to power their economic growth.

Directions: Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

Finland's education system boasts of giving hardly any homework to its kids. In fact most kids believe that they can complete their homework in less than half an hour. The teachers and the principals support this lack of homework as they believe that students have other things to do which are equally important. Sports, socialising, being with family and even exploring their backyard are considered to be very important in a student's life.

Finnish students spend the least amount of time in school than students from other parts of the world. On average Finnish students only spend three hours and forty five minutes in school which includes lunch time. This is again supported by the fact that students have a life outside school. It is stated by Finnish teachers that students have to learn and not study and hence socialisation, sports, exploration etc. are part of learning.

Directions: Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

China evolved a national working strategy to fight pollution. Under this, they placed a number of restrictions on the use of coal. Thermal power stations were shut down and people were not allowed to burn coal even for household consumption. Also, apart from creating norms for vehicular emissions, a number of precautionary measures that could keep air pollution in check were put in place. For the record, 1,37,000 people in China lost their lives because of PM 2.5 vehicular emissions just this year.

While it is true that Beijing's air quality has improved, the government is far from achieving its targets. The Chinese government has acknowledged that pollution has not reduced to the extent that it was targeting in as many as 231 out of 338 Chinese cities. To overcome this, another three-year working strategy has been prepared.

This will probably make you want to visit Luxembourg on your next family vacation: The tiny EU country is seeking to make travel free on its trains, trams and buses as part of efforts to reduce traffic congestion and air pollution. The re-elected coalition government of liberal Prime Minister Xavier Bettel said "free public transport will be introduced in the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg's territory" from early 2020. Georges Merenz, who heads the FNCTTFEL-Landesverband, Luxembourg's main transport union, expressed concerns that the government plan would lead to job losses if nobody was needed to sell tickets. "As long as it is not cleared up, we cannot accept that," Merenz told AFP. He added he was also concerned people in rural areas would not benefit from free travel.

Statement: Luxembourg wants to make travel free to benefit people from rural areas.

In this question, a passage is given followed by a statement. Read the passage carefully and judge the statement based on the given passage.

The current Australian cricket team has lost three of the last five Test series it has played. It has lost the last two series it has played, one of them against Pakistan, hardly a powerhouse of the current game. Australia is enfeebled by the absence of their two best batsmen, Steve Smith and David Warner, both serving suspensions.

The game itself is at a crossroads in Australia, with feverish introspection and hand wringing about the manner in which the national team plays the game, the aggression it displays on the field, the lack of respect it shows rivals, and the way in which it ignores the means to achieve the sole, coveted end of winning. Australian cricket has seldom been at such a low ebb. Now is the best time to beat them in their backyard. Put another way, if India cannot beat Australia in Australia in this series, it will show that the hype around this team is simply that: hype.

Statement: India has got a good opportunity to knock Australia.

Choose the appropriate one from the following options

- A -The statement is definitely true
 - B -The statement is probably true
 - C -The statement is cannot be determined
 - D -The statement is definitely false
- (A) D
 - (B) C
 - (C) A (Correct Answer) (Chosen option)
